

The Hamilton

The Hamilton is Clyde's Restaurant Group's hybrid music and dining concept located in the vibrant Penn Quarter neighborhood of northwest Washington, D.C. The three-floor property expands across 37,000 sq. ft. and has created a new outlet for dining and entertainment in downtown D.C. The project was constructed in six months with many obstacles that had to be negotiated. There were structural deficiencies and while the concrete restoration was significant, the completion date was not adjusted. This project contains over 150 step lights on the club level, over 300 tracks for track lighting throughout, and hundreds of recess fixtures in mill work, all controlled by a Lutron Dimming System containing over 150 circuits.
